Food Science Club Update

In the spring semester the Food Science club focuses the activities on community building within the club with many social events throughout the semester in addition to meeting throughout the week. One event that took place this semester was a broomball match between other agriculture clubs. This event had a great turnout with great competition and growth of connection between members. The club took a trip to New York City to experience a food tour of the Chelsea market and the meat packing district. The club showed great interest with many members attending learning many things about these unique areas of the industry.

In addition to the social events that took place the club elected new officers for the club next year. The club is being restructured to obtain greater student involvement in club activities as well as monitor the activities the officers and members attend and take part in. Some new positions have been created such as membership auditor which will provide a way of keeping track of involvement of officers and members. The club is also striving to have better graduate student involvement which is being run my two graduate student liaisons in order to have a better connection between the undergraduate students in the club and the activities that the graduate students face on a daily basis.

The new officer team is made up of Tim Poulterer as president, Kara Gustafson as vice president, Rachel Albert as treasure, Elizabeth Beck as assistant treasurer, Sydney Moser as treasure, Chelsea Novak as Assistant Treasure, Erin Flemming as Membership Auditor, Jamie Brownell and Andy Schlegel as Ag Student Counsel representatives, Lauren Ashworth and Amy Brownshindle as graduate student liaisons, Billy Bower as social chairperson, and Sara Calaman as service committee chairperson. This officer team is a group that has a lot of experience in the club as many members are seniors and are excited to lead the underclassmen and less experienced students in a year that will be remembered for a long time.

This year the food science club has members that will be attending the annual meeting of IFT in Chicago this upcoming week. This is a great opportunity for the students to see the industry from a different perspective and learn about the current topics of research and development in industry. The club has over 15 members attending and will be very exciting.

The Club is currently planning the Food Science Alumni tailgate for Homecoming which will be a great event where we will all meet to celebrate Penn State and the food industry.

Thank you to all the support you offer to the club and I look forward to seeing you in the fall. Have a great summer!

Tim Poulterer
Food Science Club President 2010-2011.
